MORE THAN A HUNDRED ENTRIES IN THE CONTEST

First Day of Pony Race a Eusy One-Every Mail Brings More Nominations, but There Is Still Room for More.

Is Still Room for More.

The first day of the pony contest closed with a rush. From all parts of the city came interested boys and girls with nomination blanks, asking about the contest. From all parts of the State, and even from North Carolina, came letters making nominations. The boys and girls are greatly interested, and it goes without saying that the contest will be interesting, both to the contestants and to the public in general.

Subscription ballot number one was issued to Master Gibson Shelton, of Buckners, Va., who from all indications is going to prove a hard working contestant.

The contest is already one of the main subjects of childhood conversation. The children are not the only ones, who are interested. The grown people are watching the result, and are ready to help their favorites. The most enterprising contestants have not only provided themselves with receipt books, but have secured an extra one or two for fathers, mothers or some grown friends who have promised to work in their behalf.

Right now is the time to get in the work, before some other contestant of them during the support of a friend you had expected to help you. By making all subscriptions and then going after them during those first few days of the contest, you will get ahead of some other contestant who thinks there is plenty of time.

All subscriptions must be accompanied by the full subscriptions on which votes are is plenty of time.

Elks' Have Crab Feast.

A good old-fashioned love feast, with crabs as the article to be discussed, was the order of events at the lodge rooms of the Elks' Club last night. Yesterday every one connected with the club was busily engaged in preparing for the feast, so that there was no doubt that the organization would live up to its reputation in the matter of entertainment. Resides the crabs there were many other articles upon the menu. Songs were sung and at a late hour the Elks went home, declaring that the entertainment at late hour the Elks went history of the Manchest r chapter.

Here's Your Turkey Story.

ISpecial to The Times-Dispatch.1
Harrisonbure Va., August 7.—Edward Bowman, who resides near Brondway, Rockingham county, comes forward with a turkey story.

A monster turkey gobbler in the Bowman barnyard about six weeks ago chased a setting hen from her nest and got on the job himself, while the poor old hen wandered aimlessly about the plantation, greatly harrassed by the changed relations.

Whon Mr. Bowman realized that the gobbler meant business he secretly stole the hen eggs from the nest and replaced them with turkey eggs. In due time nine little turkeys broke forth their shell prison and now there is not a prouder "mother" in the whole country than the old gobbler, who looks after the brood with great care and affection.
